

LOYOLA INTERNATIONAL SCHOOL

IGNITED MINDS

Welcome to Our Year-End Edition

Every ending carries a quiet sense of gratitude – for lessons learned, milestones reached, and journeys shared.

As we close this calendar year, this newsletter reflects the spirit that carried us through: curiosity in classrooms, confidence on stages, compassion in action, and community at heart.

Thank you for being part of Loyola's story this year. We look ahead with optimism and wish you and your loved ones a peaceful holiday break and a bright, fulfilling New Year.

Happy New Year!

Anandotsav - Annual Day 2025

Anandotsav 2025 was a celebration many of our families will fondly remember. Held at the QNCC Conference Hall, the Annual Day unfolded across three sessions, where students from the Junior and Senior wings brought meaningful themes to life through dance, drama, and music. From fairy tales rooted in values to performances celebrating unity beyond boundaries, every act reflected months of preparation, discipline, and teamwork. The evening also honoured academic excellence with the felicitation of board toppers and achievers, and marked the release of the school yearbook. Anandotsav stood as a proud reminder of Loyola's commitment to holistic growth.

A Nation in Our Hearts

Loyola marked Qatar National Day as students expressed national pride through doodles, art, puzzles, quizzes, and thoughtful discussions, while classrooms transformed into spaces of reflection and learning. Majlis talks and student voices highlighted why Qatar holds a special place in their hearts. It was a celebration marked not by grandeur, but by genuine appreciation and belonging.

Voices of Identity

This month also invited our students to reflect on the many ways identity takes shape. As we marked 150 years of Vande Mataram, the school community paused to honour a song that continues to echo unity, courage, and belonging across generations.

Constitution Day encouraged students to explore ideas of justice, equality, and responsibility; reminding them that strong nations are built on shared values.

Celebrating Childhood

Children's Day at Oasis was a pause in our busy routines — a day to simply celebrate childhood in all its colour and cheer. Laughter filled the campus as surprise visitors, games, movies, and thoughtful gestures from teachers turned ordinary spaces into moments of delight. Our kindergarteners added a special sparkle with their Best Out of Waste ramp walk, reminding us that creativity grows beautifully when imagination meets care for the world.

Learning Through Colour

In Kindergarten, learning often begins with what children can see, touch, and enjoy. Through Orange Day and Purple Day, our students explored colours in meaningful ways – identifying fruits, creating art, and expressing their thoughts with growing confidence. These vibrant celebrations supported early language skills, creativity, and social interaction, making learning both natural and delightful.

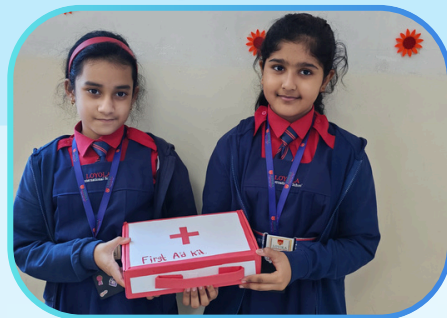

Opening Doors to Tomorrow

The University Fair 2.0 was a defining moment for our senior students, bringing the world of higher education right into our campus. With representatives from leading universities across Qatar, Europe, the USA, the UK, and beyond, students from Grades 9 to 12 explored courses, admission pathways, and future-ready fields first-hand. The fair offered clarity, helping learners connect their interests and ambitions with real global opportunities, guided by conversation, curiosity, and confidence.

Learning to Lead, Serve, and Stay Prepared - Life Skills

Our Scouts and Guides journey this term was shaped by action and awareness. Students explored global communication at the JOTA-JOTI event, experienced environmental responsibility through a beach cleaning drive, and practised real-world readiness by assembling First Aid kits on campus. Each experience reinforced a core Loyola belief: leadership begins with service, and confidence grows through doing.

Shaping Values, Celebrating Identity

Through the Aseel Initiative, under the Ministry's My Values Shape My Identity programme, students strengthened their understanding of values and cultural respect through prayer, reflection, and purposeful action.

Arabic Language Day added to this spirit by honouring Arabic as a language that connects generations and communities, reinforcing the role of language in shaping who we are.

Activity Based Learning:

From observing leaves and flowers across the campus to translating science and math concepts into hands-on activities, students learned by doing and discovering. Storytelling and handwriting competitions added moments of creativity and confidence, as students expressed ideas with clarity. These experiences reflect Loyola's belief that meaningful learning happens when curiosity leads the way and action takes charge!

LIS Toastmasters Club - A Growing Circle of Confidence

Communication at Loyola took on a wider, warmer meaning as the LIS Toastmasters Club welcomed parents into its journey through the first Open House session. With the club now extending beyond faculty members, it has become a platform for shared growth, confident expression, and meaningful dialogue. It was heartening to see parents step in, listen, speak, and become part of a learning culture that values every voice.

Loyola Outside the Boundary Walls

Engaging with the World to Shape the Future

When the world paused to reflect on the future of learning at the WISE 12 Summit, one idea stood out: technology may shape education, but humanity must shape its purpose. Engaging with global thought leaders, we return with inspiration and responsibility, determined to ensure that every step forward remains rooted in human values.

From Herbs to Happiness

A visit to Torba Farm, Al Khor, turned learning into something our students could truly experience – seeing, touching, smelling, and tasting nature up close. From exploring medicinal herbs to watching natural oils being distilled, curiosity led the way. Greenhouse farming, camel feeding, and carefree moments in the play zone made it a day where learning felt joyful, grounded, and real.

End of Term. Start of Fun!

Before the break began, our students dove headfirst into a day of excitement at Qatar's largest indoor theme park. With laughter echoing through every ride and game, it was the perfect way to celebrate friendships, memories, and a term well lived.

Together, We Run as One

At the Unity Run, Loyola students carried forward the spirit of unity and pride – celebrating Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel’s legacy and the power of standing together as one nation. Because unity isn’t just a value we teach; it’s one we live.

Celebrating Inclusive Education

As the Ministry concluded its first Special and Inclusive Education Meeting, Loyola was proud to contribute through a choir performance that reflected unity and shared purpose. The event reinforced a collective commitment to learning spaces where every student is welcomed, supported, and valued.
